Master in Chinese Business Law

(In cooperation with the Open University of the Hong Kong)

China is playing an increasingly important role in global commerce. It now crucially impacts on the landscape of the world's economy, especially with the country's success in becoming a World Trade Organization (WTO) member. China business at the present time is a virtually indispensable component of life for people and enterprises around the world. In this environment, specialised knowledge of Chinese business law is becoming increasingly sought after, especially by those in the fields of law, business and general administration. The Master of Laws in Chinese Business Law programme, is designed to meet the strong demand for useful knowledge in Chinese business law in a context where law and business are intertwined, and to provide relevant cross-border and comparative perspectives. The course's content emphasizes practicality and broad coverage to help students gain a solid understanding of Chinese business law. This programme is suitable for business management professionals in Chinese-foreign (including Hong Kong and Taiwanese), joint ventures, foreign-related enterprises, managers, proprietors of non-government enterprises as well as small and medium-sized enterprises. On completion of the programme, students are expected to have acquired an understanding of the general principles of Chinese civil law, current issues related to contract law; international business law and its impact on China, as well as perform a comparative study of business law with business law in China.
